

New Log-In for SWOG.org

When it launches in November 2017, SWOG's website will use a new log-in system.

Instead of using your SWOG ID number and password, you will use a user name and password provided by the NCI's Cancer Therapy Evaluation Program (CTEP).

If you already have CTEP/IAM credentials, you are all set. You can use those to access the new site.

If you don't have CTEP/IAM credentials – available to employees of hospitals, clinics, and other institutions with a CTEP identification number – register through the following link <https://ctepcore.nci.nih.gov/iam>. You'll receive your credentials in two to three business days.

If you're not eligible for a CTEP/IAM account, you'll use your standard SWOG roster number and password to log in. That's the current log-in system. Consultants, site finance support staff, patient advocates, and investigators with lapsed membership, along with a few others, fall into this category.

NOTE: You can't access the full website in November without either a CTEP or SWOG credential.

This means you can't review SWOG trials in development, access SWOG training sessions, and otherwise find helpful members-only content. As early as possible, be sure to get the proper credentials.
