SWOG
Leading cancer research. Together.

ABOUT SWOG

SWOG is a worldwide network of researchers that design and conduct cancer clinical trials. The group's goal is to change medical practice to improve the lives of people with cancer. SWOG trials test new ways to diagnose and treat cancer, as well as prevent it. SWOG researchers also study cancer care delivery to ultimately improve quality of life for both patients and survivors.

The nearly 6,000 physician researchers in the network practice at more than 1,000 institutions nationwide and in six other countries. The network includes 32 of the National Cancer Institute (NCI)-designated cancer centers, as well as community hospitals, private practices, and physician group networks. Formerly the Southwest Oncology Group, SWOG is one of five cooperative groups in the NCI's National Clinical Trials Network

ABOUT THE HOPE FOUNDATION

The Hope Foundation partners with SWOG to provide support of oncology research in lung, breast, gastrointestinal, and genitourinary cancers, as well as melanoma, myeloma, leukemia, lymphoma, and rare diseases. We fund critical, need-based research grants, fellowships, training events, physician education, and patient advocacy.

SWOG GROUP MEETINGS: EXHIBITOR PROGRAM

Progress in cancer research is most quickly accomplished through collaboration and partnership, through sharing of both successes and challenges in discovery. To facilitate this, The Hope Foundation supports SWOG's biannual Group Meetings, where physician researchers and oncology professionals convene each year to share results, to innovate and to present novel ideas for future progress.

At each meeting, SWOG presents industry partners with the opportunity to exhibit their products and services over a two-day period. Benefits of participation include interaction with and exposure to roughly 1,000 oncology professionals per meeting, high-profile placement of display areas and inclusion of name/logo on meeting materials.
